> TRUE BEAUTY! BY MRS. M. C. GARDINER.

Her eyes were gray, dull, sombre gray; Her cheeks the lilly'd hue ; No rosy lips, enclosing pearls, No raven hair with glossy curls, Could she display to view; Her fairy form was never known To figure in a dance; As heroine she never shown In noval or romance;

Yet she was lovely, gentle, good, And pleasant to behold; The charm of intellect was there: The purest gem of lustre rare, And richer far than gold, Were stored in her capacious mind, And in her heart of hearts enshrined. These gems were knowledge, kindness, truth, And heaven-born picty. They grew

And now their star-like radiance threw, Around their words, and actions too. Oh! what is beauty? Is it not That beaming of the soul. That lights the eye with glowing thought, And animates the whole ? The rose may fade, the lilly droop, new house, and he determined that his followers should build it tor him. So he called them together, and told them that in consideration that they would erect the house, the Lord had authorized him to promise them an extraordinary endowment. The building was soon completed, and now they apply for their reward. All the Saints are gathered together in the church, the prophet takes them through a variety of ceremonies, such as head washing, feet washing, &c., and concludes by annointing the heads of all with a composition that had a queer smell.' They are then directed to adjourn to another room that was totally dark, where they were to receive the endowment, which was to be in the shape of an extraordinary and visible manifestation of the spirit, rendering them at once impregnable thenceforth to the shafts of Satan. Arrived in the dark room, sure enough, the heads of all shone as if lit up by the brightness of the sun, "And somehow or other we must manage and great was the rejoicing of the Saints thereat. But the prophet William, who was present, although staggered a little, mistrusted that 'all was not gold that glittered,' so he took some ointment, and submitted it to an examination, and lo the discovery! He found that it was a mixture of oil and phospiorus, and hence the whole illuminating operation. was a gross cheat! He took the first optortunity to accuse prophet Strang publicly, and before the congregation, of the imposition, who so far from denying it, coolly acknowle iged the corn, and then preached a sermon, justifying the act and maintaining that all the "Very well.
